Itac is back in production

Following a widely reported fire at Itac in April last year, the company has resumed manufacturing adhesives and non-adhesives coatings at its site in Radcliffe, Manchester.

Since the incident, the business has been primarily reliant on fulfilling its orders with the help of third party manufacturing facilities. The new production unit is an interim measure that will be utilised to optimum effect. It will remain fully operational whilst Itac's main factory and modernisation programme is completed.

Paul Armitt, Itac Managing Director, said: "From this point on, our reliance on external partnership manufacturing will reduce as we move towards bringing production back totally within our factory. Since the fire our customers have been extremely supportive but there has been some inevitable disruption. This temporary facility will help get Itac right back on track."
